To the Connecticut General Assembly:

In accordance with Sec. 2-79a of the Connecticut General Statutes (CGS), the Connecticut Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (ACIR) submits this compilation of all statutes and regulations, adopted prior the end of 2019, that have been identified as state mandates impacting municipalities.

During 1998 – 2014, the ACIR had published a full compendium such as this every four years, with a brief supplement published each intervening year. This edition of the compendium, however, is the first full compendium published since 2014 because Sec. 106 of Public Act 17-2 \(June Special Session\) instituted a two-year deferral of ACIR mandate reporting.

The mandates listed in this report range widely in scope and impact. Many are comparable to Section 9-309, which specifies the procedure for announcing election returns. Others are much more substantial, like Section 10-15, which requires every town to provide public schools. Many of the mandates will, individually, have little impact on municipalities. Cumulatively, however, such mandates can have a significant impact.

Even if they don't require additional hiring or other spending, a combination of mandates requiring even a small amount of attention and/or action by a local official can have the effect of defining and mandating the essence of that job, even if no individual mandate appears especially burdensome.

The delegation by statute of certain state responsibilities to municipalities has its origin in the State Constitution. Specifically, Article Tenth establishes that the General Assembly "shall by law delegate such legislative authority as from time to time it deems appropriate to towns, cities and boroughs relative to the powers, organization and form of government of such political subdivisions."

Over time, state statutes have been used to build a mosaic of authorizations, organizational frameworks, and requirements regarding the structure and operation of local government. The specificity of such requirements generally determines the policy relationship between the state and local governments. A highly prescriptive state requirement, in particular, leaves municipalities with less flexibility to act with respect to their different and evolving needs.

We wish to highlight that state approaches for estimating the impact of mandates, including the ACIR's, can overlook differences in how different municipalities will be affected. Municipal officials say those differences can be significant. A simplistic example is that a municipality with an engineer on staff might, with no additional cost, handle a mandate requiring an engineer's review. A small town that contracts for engineering services, on the other hand, will experience a noticeable cost. The impacts of other mandates can be less clear and it can be challenging to understand the impact of a mandate on 169 uniquely organized municipalities.

Following the General Assembly's 2019 regular session, ACIR members participated in the Task Force to Promote Municipal Shared Services created by Section 366 of Public Act 19-117. The ACIR and two work groups it organized took the lead in developing the Task Force's final report. In addition to other recommendations, that report recommends the ACIR do further analysis of a sampling of each year's mandates to determine the actual local impact of each. It would also be worthwhile to retrospectively analyze earlier mandates to assess how the costs experienced by towns align with state predictions at the time of mandate adoption.

We must point out that this listing of mandates should not be considered a "hit list" of bad statutes or regulations. State and local officials agree that, from a legal and a practical standpoint, some degree of state direction is appropriate because local governments have an interest in administering many functions for which statewide uniformity is desired.

State aid to municipalities is a significant portion of the state budget, but each additional mandate further constrains a municipality's ability to fund services that its residents expect for their tax dollars. The heavy reliance on property taxes, in tandem with the uneven spread of property wealth and tax-exempt property among the municipalities, increases the challenge many face in taking on new statutory or regulatory requirements. The balancing of the various interests against the resulting costs has been and will continue to be the subject of much debate.

The reduction or elimination of mandates has long been a goal of the ACIR. The General Assembly has passed a number of public acts that reduced or eliminated state mandates on municipalities since the previous edition of this Compendium. The ACIR's legislative session mandates reports identify each session's mandate reductions and those reports are available at:

<https://portal.ct.gov/OPM/IGPP-MAIN/Responsible-Growth/Advisory-Commission-on-Intergovernmental-Relations/State-Mandates-Enacted-During-The-Legislative-Session>

The next full compendium of state mandates will be due in 2024. In the interim, the ACIR will publish an annual supplement that identifies any changes to this report, as well as the previously mentioned session mandate reports. The ACIR, furthermore, is authorized to issue additional reports on mandates and, as noted, is considering doing so.

State Mandate Definition

The term “state mandate” is defined in Sec. 2-32b of the statutes as being:

...any constitutional, statutory or executive action that requires a local government to establish, expand or modify its activities in such a way as to necessitate additional expenditures from local revenues, excluding any order issued by a state court and any legislation necessary to comply with a federal mandate

Types of Mandates

This compendium is organized into multiple parts and sections as follows:

Part I - includes the list of statutory mandates adopted by the General Assembly and is divided into three sections to reflect three different types of mandates:

Section A - includes the statutes that impose mandates specifically on municipalities;

Section B - includes statutes that mandate actions only if a municipality chooses to perform a service (although that service might be essentially unavoidable);

Section C - includes statutes that impose mandates on all entities performing certain functions including, but not limited to, municipalities.

Part II - includes the list of regulatory mandates adopted by state agencies and is divided into two sections;

Section A - includes the regulations that mandate actions on the part of municipalities;

Section B - includes regulations that mandate actions if a municipality chooses to perform a service which is not mandated (although the service might be essentially unavoidable);

The ACIR uses the following criteria for characterizing the fiscal impact assessment of mandates:

Minor:	estimated to be less than 0.1% of the town operating budget
Moderate:	estimated to be 0.1 - 1% of the town operating budget
Major:	estimated to be more than 1% of the town operating budget

For instance, if a town budget is $20 million, a major mandate would be anything that costs over $200,000, a moderate mandate would be anything that costs between $20,000 and $200,000, and a minor mandate would be any that costs under $20,000.

The ACIR has used the above framework for a number of years, but acknowledges that mandates impact different communities differently. Beyond that, it would be challenging to determine the impact of every mandates on even a single municipality, let alone on 169 unique municipalities. The ACIR, furthermore, only categorizes the fiscal impacts of Statutory “A” mandates.

It should also be noted that while many mandates are characterized as minor and may appear to impose a negligible additional burden, the cumulative effect is much greater. For example, there are numerous minor education mandates which, viewed individually, might have been handled by existing staff. Taken together, they can require personnel just to monitor mandated requirements.

Further Notes on the Use of this Report

When reviewing this report, please be mindful that it is a guide to mandates, not a list of all requirements imposed by a statute or regulation. Statutes are available through the General Assembly website at <https://www.cga.ct.gov/current/pub/titles.htm> and regulations are available through the CT eRegulations System at <https://eregulations.ct.gov/eRegsPortal/>. Be aware, however, that there can be a significant lag between a statute revision going into effect and the revision appearing at the linked site.

Regulatory mandates differ from statutory mandates in that they are contained in formal state regulations that have been adopted in accordance with the Uniform Administrative Procedures Act. Regulations implement specific sections of the Connecticut General Statutes and tend to be more detailed. Regulations cannot be enacted without prior statutory authority, but the ACIR has at times found regulations for which the underlying statute had been repealed. In the normal course of events, state agencies will repeal such a regulation in accordance with state law, but there can be a substantial period of time between the two events.

The General Assembly website's Browse Statutes feature organizes the statutes by title. Title 9, for example, is identified as including statutes regarding elections. Each title is further divided into chapters, with Chapter 145, one of the chapters in Title 9, including sections of statutes regarding absentee voting. This report identifies mandates by section and provides a link to each chapter including a section that imposes a mandate. The text of each section of the statutes is in black font. That is the language establishing statutory requirements.

The General Assembly website also provides historic information about the statutes. The black text of the statute is followed by a list in brown font of the bills that were passed to create and then modify that section of statutes. If the section has been modified since its original adoption, the brown text will be followed by a more detailed description of those changes, shown in purple font.

In addition to the information regarding legislative history, some sections include text in red font to identify court cases that have interpreted or cited the statute. Compendiums have never provided information regarding court decisions, but such information can be significant, especially for municipal activities that are especially likely to be litigated, such as many sections of statute in the Zoning chapter of Title 8 (https://www.cga.ct.gov/current/pub/chap\_124.htm).

Mandate History

Subdivision (c) of the ACIR's implementing statute specifies that the compendium is to include "the date of original enactment or issuance along with a brief description of the history of the mandate." The compendium does identify the date each statute containing a mandate was adopted, but previous editions of the compendium only provided further information regarding mandate history for one category of the statutory mandates: the Statutory "A" mandates.

Prior to this edition of the compendium, the ACIR's approach for describing mandate history had been to list each time a statute imposing an "A" mandate had been revised, even if the revision had not affected the mandate.

Many sections of statutes imposing mandates have experienced few or even no changes throughout their history, but others have been revised multiple times, even in a single year. For example, the description and history of the property tax exemption mandate in CGS Sec. 12-81 previously consumed 10 pages in previous editions of this report. It only requires three lines now, although the reduction in part results from a more concise mandate description. The previous compendium's list of amendments for CGS Sec. 7-169 ran two pages, even though it is a minor mandate regarding the process for municipal approval for bingo.

The space dedicated to each mandate in previous compendiums was unrelated to the significance of the mandate. The need to account for what were often irrelevant changes also greatly increased the amount of time necessary to review each year's new legislation. At the time of the original legislation requiring the ACIR to prepare a mandate compendium, legislative history was not as easy to access as it is today, so it is understandable that the ACIR was directed to include such information. With the greater availability of statutory information via the General Assembly website, duplicating that legislative information in these reports seems excessive.

The ACIR notes that eliminating the detailed history of statutory changes has enabled the ACIR to reduce the length of this report by nearly 300 pages and has freed some of our limited staff time for other, more meaningful work on behalf of the ACIR. We believe those benefits outweigh the loss.
